In the mid-80s, the director and composer Gautam Rajadhyaksha formulated a number of children's stories, called the "Gangster Maari" series. Maari, a small raja's son, got his first three fingers chopped off after testing the patience of a peellar named Beeja. Some viewers have questioned the reasons why Maari-Beeja's identity was changed from the original character because it's not actually said in the movie why Maari needs to get his three fingers chopped off. Maari-Beeja ultimately decides to stay in the underworld to fight crime. Maari hates Beeja due to Beeja killing his father, but he is in fact killed by the henchmen of Ramakant Desai who was actually trying to kill Maari for killing their boss and planning to replace him. Maari is born to a small raja and later becomes a ruthless crime boss. He lives in a house with his mother who lives in the forest. It is a huge mansion with a huge library and museum. He can be a good person if he wants to. Maari is known to do wrong for wrong reasons. After a full-scale firefight with the authorities, Maari is not captured but ultimately assassinated by his henchmen, under orders of Ramakant Desai. Gangster Maari 2 [PC Game].
